

Gave them all a piece of paper and told them NOT to let anyone see what they wrote.
I then had them write down the name of something in their kitchen they wanted to replace
- again reminding them NOT to let anyone see what they wrote.
and to write 2 reasons why they wanted it replaced
: when they are all done I then tell them to cross out the name of the item and replace it with their spouses name

5 couples is a lot of people
Then I start at the end of the room and have them introduce their mate by saying :
example: I want to replace my husband Mike because he is...
: it is so funny!!!
One lady said she wanted to replace her husband because he is ugly and a piece of crap sounds great
She was talking about her stove
it is just hilarious!!

I did this at another couples show in March and one lady said she wanted to replace her husband because it was too little and didn't work right!!!
: she was talking about her microwave!